

Raedas Case Manager Job Description

Raedas is a specialist investigations firm supporting clients on their most contentious and complex matters: disputes, arbitration, asset tracing, judgment enforcement and internal investigations, across multiple sectors and jurisdictions.

We are looking for an experienced Senior Associate or Associate Director (depending on experience) to take a leading role in delivering high-stakes investigative casework and managing the research teams behind it.

The role

You will run complex investigative workstreams from the front — shaping strategy alongside Directors and Partners, and translating it into rigorous, client-ready output. Day to day, you will:

- Lead advanced public-record research and design discreet human-source enquiries on sensitive matters
- Help conceive, stress-test and refine case strategy, spotting gaps and proposing solutions
- Manage Associates and Researchers, allocating tasks and safeguarding the pace, quality and direction of their work
- Review and edit written deliverables to a near client-ready standard
- Take a leading role in client communications where appropriate, and support billing, budgeting and resourcing on your matters
- Mentor junior colleagues and introduce new investigative tools and methods

What we're looking for

- Over five years' experience in investigations, disputes or asset tracing, including 2 to 3 years managing investigations and case teams
- A track record of overseeing complex investigative workstreams
- Strong writing and editing skills, with an eye for accuracy and investigative rigour
- Sound judgement and discretion under pressure, across concurrent matters
- Foreign language capability is desirable — Arabic would be ideal
- International experience is an advantage
